ABSTRACT

This comprehensive guide to Italian study programs in American colleges, universities, specialized schools, and study abroad programs contains five major sections: (1) colleges, universities, and specialized schools offering introductory courses, minor, major, M.A., and Ph.D. programs; (2) colleges and universities offering graduate programs leading to M.A. and Ph.D. degrees; (3) colleges and universities offering undergraduate work toward major and minor programs, a complete listing of all course offerings, and graduate and study abroad programs; (4) American college and university study abroad programs in Italy; and (5) an alphabetical index of colleges and universities referred to in the guide. Bibliographic information and addresses of institutions and associations are included. (RL)

INTRODUCTION

In recent years the Italian Culture Council has received repeated requests to provide a guide listing American colleges and universities that offer courses in Italian.

Students planning to take Italian find it difficult to obtain information concerning undergraduate and graduate programs. The information that is available is scattered in university catalogues, government publications and professional journals.

In this directory, "Italian in the Colleges and Universities of the United States", we have assembled all the information that should be made available to students. The following pages list the colleges and universities which offer introductory courses, undergraduate major and minor programs, graduate courses and degrees, and study abroad programs in Italy. The data was compiled from the information received on a questionnaire which was then checked against the latest available college and university catalogues.

Our object in assembling this material is to provide a rapid and practical guide to course offerings in Italian. Our aim is to serve many: students interested in earning a major or a minor, a Master of Arts or Doctor of Philosophy degree in Italian; teachers of languages; scholars of comparative literature and culture; people in the fields of Music and the Arts; lay persons interested not only in the language, but also in the literature and culture of Italy; people specializing in the fields of international and intercultural affairs.

We wish to express our special thanks to the department chairmen who provided information for this directory. Although data for this guide was compiled from many sources, the information received directly from the institutions was the most helpful in preparing complete and accurate descriptions. Aware as we are of the numerous demands on the time of university presidents and department chairmen, we are especially appreciative of their cooperation in helping us prepare this useful guide for students, counselors and the public in general.

Antonio Striano, Jr.
Director of Research

ACKNOWLEDGEMENTS and SUMMARY

This is the first time in the history of the United States, as far as I have been able to determine, that a guide as complete as this has been published in the field of Italian studies.

Antonio Striano, Director of Research for the Italian Culture Council, did an extraordinarily skillful job in compiling the data for this directory. Mr. Striano sent a letter and a questionnaire to 436 colleges and universities of which over 300 answered (the latest received was on January 9, 1969). The first and second questionnaires were sent out on March 10, 1968 and September 20, 1968 respectively. As late as February 8 of 1969, twenty-six questionnaires were sent out to check some conflicting data. All returned questionnaires were checked against college catalogues. Where no answer was received either to the first or second questionnaire, the information herein came from the latest catalogues available. Over 900 catalogues at Yale University and the New Haven Public Library were used in order to discover colleges and universities which had introduced Italian since 1965.

The following sources were used to set up a tentative list of institutions teaching Italian: the MLA's 1961, 1963, and 1965 publications "Foreign Language Enrollments in Higher Education"; Dr. Michael De Luca's 1965 survey in the June 1966 issue of Italica; a recent survey done by one of the directors of the Italian Culture Council, Dr. Giulio de Petra's "Fall 1968 Survey of Italian in California Universities and Colleges"; the college catalogues; and the announcements, messages, letters regarding new courses and programs received by the Italian Culture Council since March 1963. From these sources, Mr. Striano and I drew up a tentative list of 436 colleges which offered Italian during the period 1960 to 1968.

It is pertinent to this book to note the following facts revealed by Dr. de Petra's "1968 Fall Survey of Italian in California Universities and Colleges". The results of Professor De Luca's 1965 survey were used for comparative purposes. The number of institutions in California offering Italian more than doubled from 23 in 1965 to 52 in 1968. At the same time, the number of students increased from 3,727 to 5,207 (even though some questionnaires omitted this point). The number of instructors of Italian rose from 56 in 1965 to 126 in 1968. These figures certainly seem to indicate a healthy growth in the field of Italian studies in California. Nationwide, one can see the same exciting growth. MLA's 1963 "Modern Foreign Language Enrollments for Higher Education" reveals on page ii the following comparative registers for Italian: 1960, 11,142; 1961, 12,769; 1963, 16,874; De Luca's survey, 1965, 19,923 (considering that out of 285 colleges contacted, only 222 reported). One is, therefore, struck by the continuous growth of Italian in the United States from 1960 to 1968. These increases pointed up the pressing need for a guide in the field of Italian studies.

The present guide lists 371 colleges, universities and specialized schools offering Italian; 366 of these have introductory courses. At the graduate level, 53 are offering M.A. and/or Ph.D. programs. At the undergraduate level, 170 offer a minor and/or major. Study abroad programs are offered by 86 colleges and universities.

This book is divided into five parts to provide an easy, rapid reference. Part I shows, at a glance, all the levels of instruction available in Italian at each institution. Part II is for graduate students interested in M.A. and/or Ph.D. programs; they should write to the graduate school for the catalogue. For the undergraduate minor and major programs in Part III, we thought it advisable to include the titles of all the courses offered in additon to schematic information regarding graduate and study abroad programs. It is recommended that persons write the university or college for its catalogue since course titles and credits change, new courses are added, minors and majors introduced, graduate programs instituted, and study abroad programs arranged. Part IV lists, alphabetically by cities in Italy, the study abroad programs. Part V contains an alphabetical index of the 371 colleges and universities with city and state noted. Due to the mobility of university and college presidents, chairmen and professors, the officers of the Italian Culture Council thought it best to omit all faculty names.

Two blank questionnaires have been included in the last pages of this directory. We would be most appreciative if non-listed colleges and universities currently teaching Italian would fill one out and send it to Mr. Antonio Striano, Jr., 49 Sherman Avenue, New Haven, Connecticut 06511. When your college expands its offerings, do please let the Italian Culture Council know.

The preliminary expenses for the preparation of this manual were covered by the generosity of the following universities and colleges. To them, we are most grateful for their financial assistance: The International Affairs Center of Indiana University, Bloomington, Indiana; Smith College, Northampton, Massachusetts; Montclair State College, Upper Montclair, New Jersey; Dominican College of San Rafael, San Rafael, California; Wells College, Aurora, New York; Villa Walsh College, Morristown, New Jersey; College of Notre Dame, Belmont, California; University of Colorado, Boulder, Colorado; Queen of the Apostles College, Harriman, New York; Lake Erie College, Painesville, Ohio; Cabrini College, Radnor, Pennsylvania; Roosevelt University, Chicago, Illinois; the American Institute for Foreign Study, Greenwich, Connecticut.

I am deeply indebted to the officers and trustees of the Italian Culture Council, also to Santo Barbagallo, Lena Ferrari, Prof. Pierina Castiglione, Vincent Visceglia, Dr. Giuseppe Cardillo and many other persons for their help and encouragement.

PART III

COLLEGES AND UNIVERSITIES OFFERING UNDERGRADUATE WORK TOWARD MAJOR AND MINOR PROGRAMS/ COMPLETE LISTING OF ALL COURSE OFFERINGS/ GRADUATE AND STUDY ABROAD PROGRAMS/

INSTITUTIONS ARRANGED ALPHABETICALLY BY STATES/ COLLEGES AND UNIVERSITIES LISTED ALPHABETICALLY WITHIN EACH STATE/ THE COMPLETE POST OFFICE ADDRESS INCLUDED FOR EVERY COLLEGE AND UNIVERSITY

PART III

Notes to course offerings:

1. Offerings shown in a particular catalogue do not necessarily reflect all the courses being given in Italian by a college. Some courses are offered on an alternate year basis and may appear in the next year's catalogue.

2. Wherever a college checked advance programs on our questionnaire and its catalogue was unavailable, we could only assume that a full schedule of courses was being offered to satisfy the particular program checked.

3. It is interesting to note that several language departments have done away with an undergraduate minor program and are stressing the major one.

4. Although Junior and Community Colleges do not appear in this section, please remember that many of them are permitted to transfer undergraduate credits, particularly in the liberal arts program, to neighboring colleges and universities. Some of the Junior Colleges indicated in Part I offer as many as 16 credits in Italian which may be applied towards transfer credits.

5. Abbreviations for some Graduate Degrees:

M. A. T. means a Masters in Teaching
M. S. E. means a Master of Science for Teaching
T. E. P. means a Teacher Education Program
D. M. L. means a Doctor of Modern Languages
Ed. D. means a Doctor of Education

The Center for Italian Studies

The University has established a center for Italian studies which has a major purpose of promoting research and graduate training on modern Italy. The Center grants financial awards to graduate students for advanced study and it sponsors lectures and conferences on various topics related to modern Italy.

The center for Italian studies itself, does not offer a degree, however, students interested in Italian History, politics, economy or Italian society can get graduate degrees in their respective departments working under a specialist in the appropriate area of Italian studies.

Study Abroad Program: The University has started its first summer program in Italian studies abroad at the University of Perugia. Dr. Kogan is exploring at present the possibility of establishing an undergraduate year-abroad in Italy Final decisions have not yet been made as to the location of the Italian university with which this program will be affiliated.

To attend the Graduate School in Florence, Italy, a student must attend at least one session at the Italian Summer school... Scuola Estiva Italiana,

The School for International Training
Foreign Language Studies
Brattleboro, Vermont 05301

The School for International Training, as part of the overseas program to Italy, normally includes a 110 hour intensive pre-departure course in Italian, or the equivalent of one year of study at the average institution. In the past three years they have taught Italian courses of this nature to 114 students in addition to placing many more students abroad for summer programs with Italian families.

Italian courses are regularly offered in February, June and September for groups which depart at those times of the year.

In addition, in the fall of 1967, the University of Vermont joined the Experiment in International Living (subtitle of above School) in a cooperative effort. The University of Vermont grants six semester credits to participants in the beginning courses of Italian.

The school also conducts an exchange program each year with the Italian Experiment program each year with the Italian Experiment office at Via del Cavallino No. 8., Asti, Italy. Italians come to the U.S. under the auspices of the School for International Training and study English as a second language.

Though this school does not offer the traditional college major and/or minor programs, its special courses and livingabroad program warrant inclusion in this section.

PART V- ALPHABETICAL INDEX OF COLLEGES AND UNIVERSITIES

Please read these notes before using this index:

The following examples present a few of theproblems one meets in trying to arrange an accurate indexing of colleges and universities. We have tried to reduce the margin of error and the understandable confusion in some university systems by indicating alternate entries in parentheses or by cross-reference.

1. New York City lists its municipally owned colleges under the general title of City University of New York. The official abbreviation is CUNY. Therefore, in Part III, Hunter College, Queens College, Brooklyn College and City College have been placed under CUNY.

2. Similarly, New York State uses the term State University of New York; SUNY is its official abbreviation. Some are SUNY at Albany, SUNY at Buffalo, SUNY at Stonybrook. Others are SUNY, College at Buffalo, SUNY, College at Oswego, SUNY, College at Potsdam, etc.

3. Long Island University:
   University Center (Formerly Brooklyn Center)
   C. W. Post College
   Southampton

4. College names undergo changes:
   a. College of the City of New York (CCNY) has changed to City College (CUNY)
   b. Hunter College of the Bronx is called Herbert H. Lehman College (CUNY)
   c. Harpur College (SUNY) is referred to in the 1965 N.Y.S. Education Department Guide as SUNY at Binghamton

5. To avoid confusion with four-year colleges, we have used the term Junior in the title of all two-year colleges; a few junior colleges have become regular four-year colleges.

6. The addresses in Parts III andV are the official ones used in the 1968 National Zip Code Directory of the U.S. Post Office Department.

Missing from this index of institutions offering Italian are some of the following: conservatories, institutes schools of art and design, seminaries, specialized centers of higher learning, a few colleges and universities. To remedy these lacunae, we have added two questionnaires as the last pages of this directory.

The 1961 and 1963 statistics are taken from the MLA booklets: Modern Foreign Language Enrollments in Colleges and Universities, each volume fifty cents, MLA 62 Fifth Avenue, New York, N.Y. 10011. The 1965 figures are from Italica June 1966, from a survey by Prof. M. De Luca for AATI.

The Naval Academy

at Annapolis, Md., has circa 110 students in its Italian courses. Each year two of the majors in the Italian department are awarded by being selected by the Commandant to serve on a ship of the Italian Navy.

Is Italian Taught at Ivy League Colleges and sister institutions? is one of our repeated queries. The answer is yes. Italian is taught at Brown, Columbia, Cornell, Dartmouth, Harvard, Pennsylvania, Princeton, Yale and Barnard, Bryn Mawr, Mount Holyoke, Radcliffe, Smith, Vassar, Wellesley. In two of them, Harvard and Columbia, Italian has been taught since the early 1800's. There are over 300 colleges and universities teaching Italian in the United States.

"Survey of Acceptability of Italian"

for the fulfillment of university language requirements was summarized by Prof. Nicholas J. Marino, Secretary of the L. I. chapter of the American Association of Teachers of Italian (AATI) from a survey conducted some years ago. It presents statements from admissions offices of some thirty institutions from different georgraphical areas of the U.S. Writes Prof. Marino: I hope you will find the attached document helpful in talking to administrators and guidance people. Copies of the survey are available from him at Suffolk County Community College, Selden, N.Y. 11784. As far as the writer of the Bulletins has been able to determine, all institutions accept any language taught at an accredited secondary school. Information to the contrary should be documented and sent to the Italian Culture Council.

Harold T. Enlow, D.D.S.

wrote the following to Dr. Virgil I. Milani (University of S. Florida, Tampa)... "I am most appreciative for the loan of your Italian Dental Journals, particularly the Clinica Odonto-Protesica Stomatologica. This publication summarizes each article in English, and I regret to say, this is indeed necessary for me to have a proper understanding of the subject.

"As I mentioned to you during one of our recent conversations, I feel so inadequate when I research articles in Italian, and I have often wished this language had been required in my pre-dental studies in college. I sincerely feel that no education is complete unless one has been a student of the languages, regardless of the person's field of endeavor."

Maurizio Pollini

will be making his New York debut November 16 at Hunter College, 68th St. at Park Avenue, NYC. He was the winner of the 1962 Chopin Piano Competition in Warsaw. On December 7, also at Hunter, the pianist Arturo Benedetti Michelangeli will perform.
